We, the class of 1996, have felt over and over again that you have treated us more like an adult than a child. For this, we thank you.

You have always taken the extra time to help us when we have needed you. You are not only our teacher, but our friend. Thank you for the four years of hard work and good times. We will always remember you.

Dear Class of 1996:

This is the time when I get to extend a most sincere and heartfelt congratulations to each of you. This is truly a milestone and we are so very proud of each of you and of the persons you have become.

Just less than four years ago, you set out on a journey that seemed long. You made a commitment to the WAY, the TRUTH and the LIFE needed for that journey and today one part of that journey is complete. This is no small accomplishment. It lays firmly a foundation for the next chapter in your life story. The future lies invitingly before you.

As you write the next chapter of your life story (whatever that is for you) I urge you to write the chapter with care and with deliberate planning. Live life fully with the sure and certain conviction that you are important. Know that you are valued. Realize that you can make a difference and that God's love will always be there for you. You have become a "Mountie". You will forever be a "Mountie" and ALWAYS will remain a part of the GREAT EXPERIENCE OF CONVENT AVENUE.

Stand tall; be there for those who come into your life; carry with you the values you were taught and be the person that God has created...YOU ARE OUR REPORT CARD. We have been privileged to glimpse your greatness and now look forward to seeing you continue to grow.

Remember that we loved you "when" with all of the warts that have now disappeared. We loved you as we kept this EXPERIENCE alive for you...now we INVITE you to help us to KEEP it ALIVE for those who follow in your footsteps. We will periodically send you THE MOUNT as a way of keeping in touch.

You will remain in my prayer. May God continue His choicest gifts to each of you.

Blessings,

Sister Shirley

Students' capabilities are greater than they often believe of themselves. If students have high expectations, they do rise to their own self goals. The earlier a student has a plan or an idea for a career, the sooner a student can begin a path he/she actually desires in school. I believe there is a direct correlation between having a goal and the personal motivation a student experiences. Personal motivation is the strongest key to student success.

I believe in that spark in students' eyes. It tells something of the unique mystery which lies at each person's center. Whether I'm teaching literature or the Word of God, we are always encountering mystery. I see that spark in students' eyes become more confident when they can name mystery in a character, a poem, or in Scripture. At times their spark dulls. Yet through writing or prayer they can emerge with a new self awareness, one which reinterprets human struggle or confusion. They begin to believe in the power of vision and hope. At these moments I am not only glad to be a teacher, but grateful to be alive.

It's hard to believe that my time here is nearly over. I cannot say that I don't want to go home, but I am sure that I will never forget the good times I spent with my friends and great host family.

Looking back I think that MSJ was a good experience for me. I must say that at the beginning it was difficult to adjust to difference. In time, life seemed more normal.

I would like to thank the people who made my stay special: The Godwin family, Mrs. Flanagan, and the Berezowski family.

-Simone Meyer

All things considered I can say that I had a good experience at MSJ. I am glad I came to school in Vermont. However, I wish I could have had closer contact to some people; but it was hard because of difference in language and culture.

It was hard for me to become comfortable with a new group of people in a new school and country. I know you did your best to help me to fit in and I thank you for that. All the students and teachers helped make my time here meaningful.

-Sabrina Husemann

I have really enjoyed my stay in America and with a week left, it is sad to think my trip is over.

I was scared that when I came to MSJ, I wouldn't fit in. My host family and my new friends helped me with everything I needed.

I missed my family very much and I am excited to see them again. I have learned new things about independence and experiencing life on my own.

I have enjoyed Rutland and I loved going to MSJ. I will miss everyone.

Verena Seipp

I really appreciate that I was able to spend part of my life at MSJ. I have gained a good comprehension of English. Also, I have learned important things which are friendships, loves, and families.

During my first year, it was hard for me to make friends because nobody understood me and I couldn't understand them. Now I can tell MSJ people, "I like you guys."

Thank you, all of you. I really love MSJ. I will never forget you.

I love the feeling of working on cars. It makes me feel good that I can turn a junk car into a well running car. The feeling of working on a greasy car means that the work is getting done. Working on a motor is like life because everything falls into place.

Responsibility. When I think of my junior year that is what comes to mind. Sure we have our classes and commitments to sports and clubs, but we also begin to take on greater responsibilities. As juniors we inherit the title of "upperclassmen" and whether we realize it or not we are role models. The younger kids want to become the kind of people we are and we had better be sure its good people they are modeling! Also our Junior year, almost everyone has their driver's license. With this achievement we gain more freedom. We also gain a responsibility to society, our parents. We must not abuse this freedom; rather we are to wisely choose action. Sometimes its a lot to handle; but hey, that's why we're the juniors.

Junior year is a big year emotionally. We are under a lot of stress because of parents, sports, classes, and looking at colleges. Our relationships with friends, of both sexes, also become more intense because we are sharing such important time together. We often laugh till we cry, and sometimes we cry till our friends come along and make us laugh again. With our junior year we begin one of the busiest, most stressful, and at the same time exciting periods of our lives. We only hope to get by with a little help from our friends.

Au revoir to all the anonymity of freshman year. Last year it seemed as if I was wearing a nametag that said, "Hey you," because that is what everybody called me. Now I have a lot more friends and everyone knows my name.

My favorite song is "The Boxer" by Simon and Garfunkel. It tells the story of a man seeking acceptance from his family and society in general. In a way, this is what freshman year is all about. We are thrown into an entirely new group of people. They don't know what to think of us and we don't know how to react to them. We spend the year trying to fit into this new crowd.

One of the best things about being a freshman is that we are not under a lot of pressure. Although we strive to do our best, other people expect little or nothing from us because of our age.

When we mess up, people are understanding, and when we do something good we are commended.

The nicest thing someone did for me this year happened on the way home from a basketball game. A couple of upper-classmen started talking to my friends and me. It really helped me start to feel accepted.

Are you getting burned
by high propane costs?

If you're firing up a propane water heater every time your family wants hot water, you may be getting burned. Contrary to popular belief, off-peak electric water heating compares very favorably with propane. And with electric, there's no flame, no flue, and no smell.

So if you want the whole story on water heating, call CV.
